For high school students, the last day of high school is a new beginning because they will leave their school to start their new life. They need to learn many life skills to live in the world. What about learning how to peel an orange? That's what the 18-year-old American girl Meg Sullivan was taught on her big day.

Not long ago on Meg's last day of high school when she opened her lunchbox she found a bag with two unpeeled oranges. In the bag was a note from her father too. On the outside of the note read, "It's Time Baby Girl." When Meg opened the note, she couldn't help smiling with tears -- there were teaching her how to peel oranges! Meg took a picture of the note and posted it on the Internet. The love from a father touched the hearts of hundreds of people.

Meg also shared that her father Sullivan has been cooking lunch for her since she was five years old and that peeling oranges has become something of a family tradition. "I felt like the note was like turning the page in my childhood and bringing me to my own new life as an (成年人), " the girl said.

It seems that the family tradition has come to an end. But the father and the daughter will find a new way of showing love to each other.

Do you get pocket money from your parents or do you work to make money

Do you spend it or save it? Let's check out how four teenagers in Britain get money and do with it.

	Ruth, 13 My parents give me 10€ 10€ a week. I get it on Saturday after I wash my father's car. I keep most of the money in my piggy bank at home. I'm saving up for a new pair of football shoes. I'm close to my goal.
	Sam, 15 My parents don't give me pocket money. I make 20€ 20€ every week by working in a store from 3 pm to 5 pm on Sunday. I spend about half of the money on my books, clothes and food, and then save the rest for my next holiday.
	Jana, 16 I get pocket money from my parents. They give 60€ 60€ every month, but I have to help with housework, like doing dishes and taking out the rubbish. I can use the money to buy food and gifts for my parents on holidays.
	David, 17 I look after young children for my neighbours from 9 am to 3 pm every Saturday. I make 100€ 100€ every month. The work is very tiring, but I enjoy being with children and I need this job to save money for my university education.

Do you like writing by hand or with a keyboard

A new brain research, led by researchers at the Norwegian University of Science and Technology shows that choosing handwriting over using a keyboard results in better learning and memory.

"When you write your shopping lists or notes by hand, you simply remember things better after some time." said Audrey van der Meer, author of the study.

The study was done using equipment(设备) to track(跟踪) and record brain wave activity. 12 young adults and 12 children took part in the study. Each person was asked to write by hand and type on a keyboard while wearing a special cap with over 250 electrodes(电极). The sensors(传感器) in the electrodes picked up the electrical activity that took place in the brain. Each examination took 45 minutes per person.

The results show that the brain in both young adults and children is much more active when writing by hand than when typing on a keyboard. According to Van der Meer, plenty of senses become active by pressing a pen on paper, seeing the letters written and hearing the sound made while writing. These build connection between different parts of the brain, opening the brain up for learning.

Van der Meer believes that the results show the importance of children's learning to draw and write at an early age, especially at school. "Learning to write by hand is a slower course, but it's important for children to experience the tiring step of learning to write by hand," she said.

The hand movements are good for us in many ways. "If you use a keyboard, you use the same movement for each letter. Writing by hand requires control of your fine motor (精细动作) skills and senses. It's important to put the brain in a learning state as often as possible." Van der Meer added. "You might use a keyboard to write an article, but you should learn by hand during a class."

57. Which is the correct order of the research steps

- ① Record and study the results.
- ② Put special caps on each person.
- ③ Find 12 young grown-ups and 12 children.
- ④ Ask the people to write by hand and use a keyboard.

A. ②④①③ B. ③②④① C. ③④②① D. ②①④③

58. What does the underlined word "These" refer to (指的是)? _____

- A. The letters you are learning to write.
- B. The skills you use to write an article.
- C. The sense experiences when you write by hand.
- D. The different parts of the brain relative to writing.

59. What is the last paragraph mainly about _____

- A. The examples of writing by hand instead of using a keyboard.
- B. The control of your fine motor skills and senses when you write.
- C. The several ways to write an article and take notes during a class
