China's 15-year-old Chen Ye won gold in the Men's Park Final of Skateboarding at the 19th Asian Games in Hangzhou on Sept. 25, 2023.

Chen started 1 this sport in 2016. "I remember one day I went to a sports store, and 2, I saw a skateboard. I decided to give it a try," Chen told China Youth Daily. 3 it was really challenging to stay on the board at first, Chen found it very interesting. "Every time I did some difficult tricks, I felt the joy of making breakthroughs (突破). What a(n) 4 feeling it was!" said Chen.

Gradually, Chen needed a better skatepark for 5. To meet the need, his father decided to make a skate bowl himself. "He would work on it late into the night, sometimes until three or four in the morning," said Chen. "I'm really 6 for my father's support."

As a junior high school student in Huizhou No. 1 Middle School, Chen needed to find a balance 7 his schoolwork and skateboarding. His only "privilege (特权)" was being 8 from PE classes, during which he would do schoolwork because he needed to practice in his own skate bowl for hours after returning home. He trained in the morning, studied in the afternoon and sometimes had to have extra (额外的) classes with the teachers' 9.

Looking at the seven years of learning skating, Chen said this experience made him stronger and more 10 to do something he truly loves.

Once a tortoise and two swans lived on a lake. They were very good friends. They spent many hours happily together.

To their bad luck, there was no rain that year. The lake became 51. So they had to leave the lake in search for another one to live. The two swans could 52 easily, but for the tortoise it was difficult. The 53 of them began to wonder, unsure of what to do next. At last, the two swans had an 54. They said to the tortoise, “We will place a stick in your mouth. And we will carry it in our beaks (喙) on either side. This will make us fly together. But 55, you must not open your mouth. If you do, you know what will happen to you.”

The tortoise was sad to 56 the lake, but he agreed to the idea happily.

One fine morning, they were flying over a large town. The people of the town were surprised at what they saw in the sky. They were very curious about it and started shouting 57. The tortoise heard the noise and wondered what it was about. He 58 his promise and opened his mouth to ask curiously, “Why is there...? Ah...!”

Sadly, down fell the tortoise. When the swans flew in the direction of the tortoise, they found that he was 59. The swans had no chance to save him. They were sad to lose their best friend but had to fly away and 60 their new life.

From the story we know if we break our promises, we will pay the price for it. So it's important for everyone to keep promises.
