>>> Is the Clean Hong Kong campaign(运动)working?

LittleBug 88:	My dad had to pay a $1500 fine today for throwing a cigarette butt on the ground. An officer caught him and gave him a ticket. That' s just bad!
MsNeat99:	Littering is against the law. If you break that law, you' re a "littler bug", and have to pay the fine. You bring that onto yourself! The law is there to deter people from littering and to keep our environment clean.

LittleBug 88:	Well, I' m against this whole Clean Hong Kong campaign as it just doesn' t work! There' s still litter everywhere!
TidyBunny:	What' s the Clean Hong Kong campaign?
MsNeat99:	The government started it to make Hong Kong cleaner. It' s now illegal to litter or spit in public places. The campaign includes posters and television advertisements to educate people about the law and encourage them to keep Hong Kong clean.
TidyBunny:	I think the campaign is a great idea. I always pick up after myself and try to keep all public places clean.
MsNeat99:	I really support this campaign too. It' s important to keep our public spaces clean, otherwise diseases can spread quickly, and we can get very sick.
LittleBug 88:	I know a clean environment is important, but the campaign just isn' t effective. After all, people still litter and spit in public spaces.
TidyBunny:	If you aren' t worried about the fine, then you' ll litter. But as long as some people are worried about the fine, they won' t litter. The fine works if it prevents some people from making public spaces dirty.
MsNeat99:	I agree! The campaign works if it helps keep public spaces cleaner. Hong Kong would be much dirtier without the campaign!
TidyBunny:	People need to know it' s important to keep Hong Kong clean.

LittleBug88:	But what can I do? I can't clean up Hong Kong clean!
TidyBunny:	Everyone needs to do their part. If everyone cleaned up after themselves, the environment would be a lot cleaner.
LittleBug88:	Yes, but many people still think it's harmless if they just throw small things on the ground. I've seen people drop sweet wrappers on the ground when they think no one is looking.
MsNeat99:	We need to be aware that small things add up to big things when many people do it! Keeping public spaces clean benefits everyone.
TidyBunny:	Maybe the fine will help some people see that littering or spitting isn't so harmless!
LittleBug88:	It's helped my dad to see that. He will definitely think twice before littering again. A $1500 fine isn't harmless!

Four eco books for Earth Day

Celebrate Earth Day on 22 April with some books that could help the planet

Green Kids Cook: Simple, Delicious Recipes & Top Tips

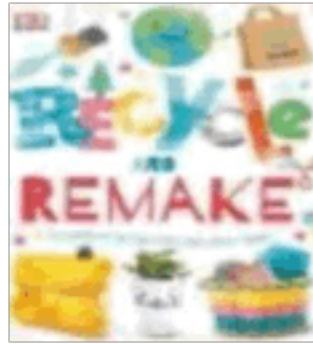

by Jenny Chandler

(Pavilion Books)

Learn to make lots of delicious dishes while thinking about the environment. As well as more than 50 easy recipes, such as Vietnamese summer rolls and butternut bean burgers, this book gives you tips to make the food you eat as environmentally friendly as possible.

Recycle and Remake: Creative Projects for Eco Kids

(Dorling Kindersley)

This book is packed with ideas for craft activities to allow you to reuse and recycle items and help the environment. Create seeded recycled paper from junk mail; turn old carrier bags into bracelets or baskets; make a beeswax food wrap; or grow plants in up cycled milk-bottle planters with your own home-made compost (混合肥料).

Grow: A First Guide to Plants and How to Grow Them

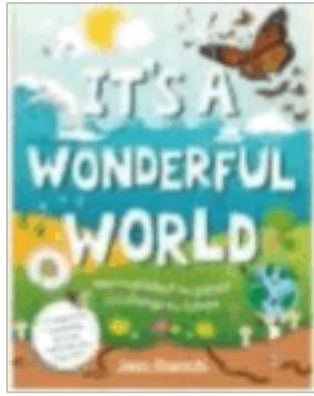

by Rizanino Reyes

Illustrated by Sara Boccaccini Meadows

(Magic Cat)

This beautiful guide is a gift for new successful gardeners, whether you have an access to a back garden, a vegetable garden or simply a balcony. You' ll find instructions for each plant.

It' s a Wonderful World

by Jess French

(Dorling KiCelebrating)

Celebrating the wonders of nature, this book will help you understand how you can protect our planet and take care of wildlife. Vet Jess French introduces readers to all sorts of environments, animals and plants, as well as the challenges they face. Just as importantly, though, she explains the things we can do to help them.

二、阅读回答问题

(2021·上海闵行·统考一模) On June 28, my parents celebrated 70 years of marriage. Mom and Dad live in Calverton. They have been through years of hard work and good times, always supporting each other.

When I was a little girl, I remembered my parents working side by side in spring, summer, fall, and winter cleaning or working in the yard, or painting, and wallpapering. They have taught me what hard work is.

My parents bought a house in Elmont. They never believed they'd be able to own their own home, and to them, it was their castle. They worked hard to decorate it and kept it looking beautiful. They taught us to work hard and to appreciate everything we had.

Mom likes everything—sightseeing, clubs, anything, and everything. Dad, even today, can't understand why she always wants to go out!

Mom is still active with the Red Hatters women's group and her gardening club. Dad spoils (宠爱) her by taking care of the house, but also watches a lot of baseball and does jigsaw puzzles.

The key to their sweet marriage is that they respect each other.

With the help of my brother, they also stay current with new technology. Their latest acquisition is an iPad.

My brother, who is 67, and I (now 69), have always known we are lucky to have such great parents. My daughter and I try to see them almost every weekend when we play cards together and catch up on the week's news.

My parents are the glue that holds our whole family together, making holidays and ordinary days special to us all.

I know we are lucky to have them both. I even save all of their voice mail messages, just so I'll have their voice to hear when eventually they are not here. But Mom keeps telling us all she's definitely going to live to be 100, so we will have a few more holidays, birthdays, and memories to experience. I learn what love is from my parents.
