When I was in Grade Seven, I began to play games on my phone. The games were interesting and I felt kind of relaxed when playing. However, every coin has two sides. Gradually, I found that it was getting more and more difficult for me to pay attention in class. And since then I seldom played sports with friends, I got heavier and heavier. Finally, I realized that though the phone is a great invention, I shouldn't let it influence my schoolwork and health. So I made a decision to get rid of the bad habit.

Now, I'm one of the top students in my class and I'm much fitter. As you can see, though the phone is a great invention, we shouldn't spend too much time on it.

Recently, my class held a discussion about whether students should surf the Internet. 68% of the students say that students can surf the Internet. First, we can get all kinds of information from the Internet and it is good for our study. Second, we can shop, chat and make friends online.

However, 32% of the students are against surfing the Internet. For one thing, they think not all the information on the Internet is true. For another, students may be addicted to online games.

In my opinion, we should make use of the Internet to study well and get rid of the disadvantages of the Internet.

My family rules

As a part of Chinese culture, family rules play an important role in the growth and education of children. Different families have different family rules, such as being honest, respecting elders, reading every day, and everyone can't use his mobile phone when doing housework or eating.

There are many rules in my family. First of all, I'm not allowed to watch TV or play computer games on school nights. In my opinion, I need time to do some relaxing things instead of studying on school nights. Maybe my parents are strict with me in this way. Secondly, I have to do a lot of housework.

Finally, the biggest problem is that I can't join any club. My parents think that it's bad for my study. They don't know I'm interested in running, playing basketball and writing.

Nothing can be achieved without rules. I think I can talk with my parents and we can make family rules together.

Dear Mike,

In order to improve students' health, our country carried out some rules to reduce students' pressure. Let me tell you something about them.

Firstly, homework for middle school students should take not more than 90 minutes so that they will have more time to relax. Secondly, students are not allowed to take mobile phones to school. Parents must control the time that children spend on mobile phones. Only in this way can children really concentrate on their study. Thirdly, students should develop good habits. They should listen carefully in class and go over their lessons in time after class.

In my opinion, these rules are helpful to us students. If we follow them, we can improve our study as well as health.

Are there such rules in your country? Hope for your reply.

Yours,
Li Hua

Andrea stopped the car. When the old lady got in, Andrea could see that she was not that little. She was in a long dress and had a hat pulled down low over her eyes. She put her big brown shopping bag down onto the floor.

"Do you live in Brockbourne?" asked Andrea. "No, dear," answered the old lady in a low voice. "I'm just going to visit a friend, but my car won't start, so I decide to hitchhike."

Something in the way the lady spoke made Andrea uneasy. Andrea secretly studied the half-covered face, the shapeless body, the arms with thick black hairs... Thick black hairs? Andrea's blood froze. This wasn't a woman. It was a man!

Her heart was beating wildly and her mind raced. Then suddenly, an idea came up to her. She stopped the car in a sudden. "A child!" she shouted. "Did you see the child? I think I hit her!" "I didn't see anything," the "old lady" said. "I don't think you hit anything." "I'm sure it was a child!" shouted Andrea. "Could you just get out and have a look?" The "old lady" slowly opened the car door, leaving "her" bag inside. As soon as "she" was out of the car, Andrea drove away as soon as possible.. .

Several minutes later, Andrea thought about the "old lady's" bag and opened it carefully. There was only one thing in it — a shining knife.

A moment later, the police came to her. Andrea pointed to the direction the "old lady" might be in. Then the police drove along the road to look for "her". How amazing! The police were surprised to see that the "old lady" was still standing by the road. The police stopped and said, "Hello, madam. We'd like to take you to Brockbourne. Get in, please."

"How dangerous! What should I do?" Andrea said to herself. "He must be a thief or robber." As soon as she realized this, Andrea drove to the nearest police station and told the police what had happened, and then she left.

When Andrea got home, she told her parents all about the "old lady". After hearing the story, her parents hugged her tightly and said, "What a lucky girl! You are brave and smart enough to protect yourself. We are proud of you!" An hour later, the police phoned her and told her that they had caught the man — a real robber.

It was my birthday last Wednesday. Something mysterious happened after school. When I walked into my room, I was shocked to see it was in a mess. Papers were scattered on the floor, and my books lay open as if someone had been searching through them. My heart sank, thinking someone had broken in.

I carefully examined the room, searching for any signs of a struggle or theft. However, I found nothing except for a strange little paw print on my pillow. Suddenly, a small furry figure emerged from behind the curtains. It was a puppy, with bright eyes and a wagging tail.

At that moment, my mother entered the room with a smile. She explained that the puppy was her special birthday gift for me. Its little paw print on my pillow was its first "present" to its new home. Relief flooded through me as I realized there had been no intruder, only a welcome surprise. I couldn't have asked for a more unique and memorable birthday gift.

Glad to hear from you. It's great to know you've got a Chinese music club in your school.

Listening to traditional and modern Chinese music is a good way for the club members to know more about Chinese music, because they can experience the beauty of Chinese music personally.

Sharing stories of Chinese singers can help them better understand the background of the songs, so it's surely a meaningful activity. Besides, you can introduce various Chinese instruments to the club members in different ways. Dear Cindy,

You must be excited about coming to China soon. As you know, different countries have different customs. There are many different table manners between China and Western countries.

Now let me tell you something you need to know about table manners when you are in China.

First, you are supposed to eat with chopsticks. It's not polite to eat with your hands. Second, you shouldn't make noise while eating. It's not polite to do that. Finally, you are not expected to point at anyone with your chopsticks. I believe you will get used to these table manners.

Hope you will have a good time in China.

Yours,

Li Fei

Dear Tom,

I'm going to tell you something about the table manners in China.

First, you are not supposed to stick your chopsticks into your food. And you shouldn't point at anyone with your chopsticks. Besides, it's rude to speak loudly at table. I think it's good to wipe your mouth with the napkin after you take a drink. And it's polite to thank the host for the food.

I hope you can find my advice helpful, and I believe you will have a great time in China.
