If there is one piece of advice I have for people today to experience more joy in life, it is to travel more. Making the journey out to somewhere you've never gone before with an open schedule, to let life show you what are waiting for you.

As Danny Kaye once said, to travel is to take a journey into yourself. As you travel you get close to more new people, cultures, and lifestyles than those in your homeland all the time. With all the newness in your life, you're also opened to new thoughts, ways of seeing the world and living.

Saint Augustine said “The world is a book, and those who do not travel read only one .” When you travel, you may realize how kind and friendly strangers can be. Beyond that, you have the whole world to learn about with every place you discovered, every person you met and every culture you experienced.

Tim Cahill claimed that a journey is best measured 测(量) in friends rather than miles. One of the first things you can learn from traveling is how easy it is to make friends. Something magical happens when they're open to express themselves without feeling judged. That's how you can become best friends with people when you've only known them for a few hours.

Helen Keller thought that life is either a brave adventure or nothing. Life is a wonderful gift. You can experience it and take action from now rather than say “I wish I had”, so you can say “I'm glad I did”.

- A. increase your chances of reading books
- B. encourage you to make many new friends
- C. help you know more about your inner heart
- D. ensure you feel your whole life is worth living

14. Why can you become best friends with people within a few hours?

- A. You can realize how friendly strangers are.
- B. You can measure people's features carefully.
- C. You can perform magic tricks during the trip.
- D. You can express your true self to other people.

15. What might be the author's attitude to Helen Keller?

- A. supportive. B. curious. C. patient. D. doubtful.
